

The Healer Jesus Lopez No. 7

In a villa lived the ruthless sociopath Fritz Kaufmann, infamous as the “Chakra Torturer”, who had no qualms about killing people to steal their chakra energy. The bodies found had their seven chakra points removed, and they appeared drained. The police pursued him in vain, while his reputation remained shrouded in the shadows of fear.

His father, a former professional killer, had taught him the dark secrets of killing at an early age, turning him into a monster. Unlike his father, Fritz had perfected his cruel skills in the realms of energy and spirituality. He absorbed the essence of chakras to enhance his energy and extend his life. But in a dark limbo, a confused soul screamed in agony. The chakras were imbalanced, blocked, and incomplete.

Due to an unforeseen interruption, the deed remained unfinished. He died without the chakras being completely removed. When chakra energies are fully removed, the deceased wither away in the limbo and cannot make a sound. This time, due to the unfinished torture, it wasn't the case. This restless soul had enough energy left, and its cries echoed through various spiritual dimensions.

Deep in meditation, the spiritual healer Jesus Lopez heard these desperate cries. His trained senses picked up the vibrations, and he teleported to this poor soul. What he found was unlike anything he had seen before. To establish a connection, he had to show great compassion to calm the soul. After intense communication on an energetic and telepathic level, Jesus learned of the torment inflicted by Fritz Kaufmann. With determination, he prayed for help from the spiritual world of God, and an army of helpers rushed to assist their tortured brother.

After retreating to process these new experiences, it was time for Jesus to end these atrocities once and for all. He learned of a planned party that Fritz Kaufmann would host. Shortly after, he received a call from a friend. This friend had an extra ticket to that very party and felt an inner urge to call him and give him the ticket. Such twists of fate happened repeatedly in special cases. Now was the time to prevent further murders and free the other souls from the limbo.

The room was bustling as Jesus Lopez, dressed in an elegant suit, discreetly mingled among the guests.

He knew he was close. Fritz Kaufmann, who also possessed supernatural abilities, sensed Jesus Lopez's presence and looked at him. Just as he was about to lead his next victim away from the party. A sinister smile crossed his face as he perceived a threat to his dark deeds. He directed his negative thought waves toward Jesus Lopez to numb him. But Jesus Lopez was prepared. He held a powerful clear quartz crystal in his hands. His senses warned him, and he used the crystal to deflect the negative thought waves back.

Fritz Kaufmann was disturbed and confused by the energetic recoil. He panicked and tried to flee. He had every reason to panic, while Jesus Lopez calmly followed him. The light of the clear quartz crystal had also shattered his energetic shield. In addition to absorbing chakra energies, he had always built a strong protection around him to shield himself from the souls of his victims. Now, the languishing souls sensed their chance and wanted to regain their energies.

The guests only saw him frantically running up the stairs further and further. They didn't see the deceased souls swirling around him, reaching into his chakras to recharge themselves. With every passing second, he felt his stolen power dwindling. In a desperate attempt to save himself, he impulsively jumped from a nearby balcony into the abyss.

His physical body died, but his soul could not escape.

Surrounded by the starving souls of those he had killed and whose energy centers he had consumed, he had to face his karma instantly. Now separated from his material body, it was easy for them to fully absorb their and his energy. Only after he was completely drained and almost all his energy was taken away did they let go and leave. To make matters worse, he was eventually pulled down into the depths of darkness.

The souls were freed, and evil received its just punishment. The rest is in God's hands. Good will always triumph, even when it seems like the darkest hours of the night will never pass. And so, the spiritual healer Jesus Lopez continued his life mission, freeing more souls and igniting the inner light in people wherever he was needed.
